News and information from Mulberry School for Girls Sixth Form

“YOU SAY GOODBYE, AND I SAY HELLO”

‘Hello, Goodbye’, The Beatles

Hello Year 11, or should I say Year 12!

Welcome to our first newsletter, gearing you up towards your studies at Mulberry School for Girls sixth form.

It is an absolute pleasure to confirm that I will be your Head of Year, as of September.

I know how appreciative you all are of the phenomenal hard work from your current Head of Year, Ms King. Myself and Ms King, alongside Ms Pallet, will be working closely together to do everything in our power to get you thoroughly prepared, excited, and invigorated for the new school year in September.

I would like to say a very warm welcome to all our external candidates. We look forward to you joining the Mulberry family this coming academic year.

The past few months have been very turbulent times for everyone, but particularly people of your age group. We know how hard you have worked towards your GCSE qualifications. Take stock of what you have achieved and remain hopeful for the future. I urge you all to keep going. The end is in sight.

The staff at Mulberry remain here to support you.

In upcoming weeks expect to see notices regarding:

- The Oxbridge programme
- Subject specific trips and visits Scholarships/Bursaries
- The prefect leadership programme
- The VESPA model and awards
- + Many more!

I look forward to seeing you all in September!

Ms Roberts
Year 12 Learning Coordinator

Quote of the week

“It took me quite a long time to develop a voice, and now that I have it, I am not going to be silent.”

How an EPQ could help you!

An EPQ allows you to gain an extra qualification by researching a topic of your choice.

It is a voluntary qualification that shows you can undertake independent research, which is necessary for all students at university and helps to bridge the gap between sixth form and degree-level study. Moreover, it shows passion and self-discipline. Some universities may even lower their typical offer if you achieve a particular grade in an EPQ.

- It allows you to move beyond the scope of what you are taught in the classroom.
- It can be used to provide evidence for a passion you have, which may come in handy in university and job interviews. It can be an excellent way of showing an interest in a degree subject that is not available at A level.
- You learn how to structure a report properly, including an abstract, appendix and bibliography.
- You get to develop a variety of skills including time management and learning how to reference, as well as improving organisation and planning.

“The mind is not a vessel to be filled but a fire to be kindled.”
